

The Cavalier Chronicle

President's Message

WOW!! What a show! If you are one of the ones that stayed home on February 4th, then you really missed a special treat. Over 100 beautiful and fully groomed cavaliers were all around, all day long, and it was a loooong day. My favorite part was the puppy classes; they were so cute, these little ones going around the ring. Our show was a big success, not one negative word did I hear. The ringside food was wonderful as usual, thanks to Mark Fitchpatrick. Judging was great, and everything went smooth. It was a very long day and all of us that were there had very tired feet with blisters.

Friday night's Auction and Banquet was a big success at our new venue, the Hilton. I must tell you Sharon Utzych did an outstanding job collecting items for the Auction. The food for the banquet was delicious, and I believe everyone that attended had a fun time.

A big thank you to all who worked to make the show, banquet and auction a success. This includes the trophy donors, the auction donors and purchasers, all those who worked at the show, before the show and afterwards. Thanks also to those of you who helped to entertain our judges and helped with the auction. This would not have happened without you.

To all you non show and associate members that have pet cavaliers...do not think that you would not have a fun time at the show! I think if each one of you were to come to one of our specialties, you would be back each year. To sit ringside, hold your own cavalier in your lap and watch as the Judge goes over each one and finally narrows it down to just one cavalier that she/he believes represents the AKC breed standard better than another other that is in attendance is awesome to watch. And if you are into all things Cavalier, we do have plenty of vendors with cavalier items, and photographers to take your cavaliers picture. Then if you really want a fun time, sign up to come to the Auction and Banquet usually held on Friday night. The auction items are really "all things Cavalier". You won't be disappointed, but remember to bring your checkbook.

Now, the show is over, it's 2010 and it's time to move on.

This club does not belong to the Officers and Board, we need ALL our members to make it a better club. Don't just sit back and let the officers and board do all the work, and make all the decisions. Step up to the plate, come to meetings, get involved, let someone know your thoughts.

Let's make a resolution to be a more active member in 2010!

Our March Speaker— Elizabeth Barrett

Please join us at our March meeting where we are fortunate to have Elizabeth Barrett as our speaker.

Elizabeth Barrett began showing dogs in conformation, obedience and later agility, in 1991 with the purchase of a black male Doberman. That dog went on to become the second male in the history of the breed to obtain the AKC's Master Agility Championship. He was also one of four dogs that Elizabeth has handled into the Doberman Pinscher Club of America's (DPCA) Top 20 Agility rankings.

In addition to handling multiple breeds to Top 10 conformation status, she has breeder/handled several Dobermans to their AKC championship.

obedience and agility titles. She handled the 2007 DPCA National Best of Winners in a class entry of over 225 dogs and bitches, and has successfully handled dogs from five of the seven AKC groups. In 2009 she was asked to judge the DPCA's Top 20 Conformation Event.

Elizabeth has regularly been featured as an agility and physical therapy columnist in the Doberman Digest, has been reprinted in Front and Finish, and is featured as a contributing author in the to Bob and Pat Hastings' Puppy Puzzle video-- Another Piece of the Puzzle: Puppy Development. She co-authored a three hour presentation on Pain Management with an Emphasis on the Geriatric Patient for the 2009 conference of the American Holistic Veterinary Medical Association.

Elizabeth Barrett was certified in canine massage therapy in 2002 and graduated with honors as a Registered Veterinary Technician.

Certified by the University of Tennessee College of Veterinary Medicine and Physical Therapy, she manages Caring Canine Rehabilitation Center in Stone Mountain, Georgia as well as working at their satellite office, Loving Touch Animal Wellness and Fitness Center in Midtown Atlanta.

Peanut Butter Cookies

Ingredients:

2 cups whole wheat flour
2 cup wheat germ
1 cup peanut butter
1 egg
1/4 cup canola oil
1/2 cup water
1/2 tsp salt

Directions:

Mix all dry ingredients together and add egg, oil, peanut butter and water. Mix into a dough and roll out to about 1/4 to 1/2 inch thickness.

You can cut out shapes using a cookie cutter or design your own using a knife.

Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven for 15 minutes. You can store these in a sealed container in the fridge for several weeks or you can freeze them and use as needed.

ACKCS Rescue Trust
"It's All About The Dogs!"

Sangria - Brown - Purple - Maroon

Rescue Cavaliers often present special challenges, but especially in these difficult economic times. The ACKCS Rescue Trust continues to face an influx of Cavaliers that have come into the rescue program. Most of the dogs come with health problems which must be addressed. Veterinary care is costly – even for basic needs of the dogs coming into rescue as many are elderly. Some remain in foster care for a very long time because of their special health needs and the lack of adoptive families to take on older dogs or those with health issues.

In order to meet the needs of these special dogs, the ACKCS Rescue Trust has designed special t-shirts with its new logo. The new logo features Oakley, one of our recent rescue dogs who won the hearts of the Cavalier fancy. Please purchase a t-shirt to help support the ACKCS Rescue Trust continue its work to help Cavaliers. By doing so, you can return just a bit of the love that these little dogs so freely give all of us.

The t-shirt price includes shipping: S-XL $20, 2XL $23, 3XL $24, 4XL $25, 5XL $26 & 6XL $27 each, and may be purchased on the parent club website (www.ackcsc.org) shopping area.

The Magical Cotton Ball

We are starting a new article of "home remedies". If you would like to share a home remedy, please email Sharon for inclusion into the Chronicle. Our first home remedy is provided by Mark Fitchpatrick.

This article written by Sandy Brock was published in the Fall 2009 issue of The Royal Dispatch and is shared here with their permission.

Although it addresses a holiday emergency, it is a remedy that we need to remember all 365 days during the year. What do you do if you puppy (or mischievous older dog) gets into your holiday decorations and eats some of the glass ornaments? This potential mishap can darken even the brightest holiday season.

The Procedure

Before the holiday, go to the pharmacy and buy a bag or box of cotton balls. Be sure that you get the COTTON BALLS

...not the cosmetic puffs that are made of man-made fibers. Also, buy a quart of half-and-half and put it in the freezer.

Should your dog eat glass ornaments: Defrost the half-and-half in the microwave and pour some in a bowl. Dip cotton balls into the cream and feed them to your dog.

Dogs 10 - 50 pounds should eat 3 - 5 balls and larger dogs should eat 5 - 7. Dogs seem to like these strange treats and eat them readily. As the cotton works its way through the digestive tract it will find all the glass pieces and wrap itself around them.

Even the teeniest shards of glass will be caught and wrapped in the cotton fibers and the cotton will protect the intestines from damage by the glass. Your dog's stools will be really weird for a few days and you will have to be careful to check for fresh blood or a tarry appearance to the stool. If either of the latter symptoms appears, you should rush your dog to the vet for a check-up, but in most cases the dog will be just fine.

An Actual Experience: Ann Bramgardner of the Welsh Terrier Club of America.

I can personally vouch for the cotton ball treatment. While I was at the vet waiting for him to return from lunch, a terrified woman ran in with a litter of puppies who had demolished a wooden crate along with large, open staples. The young vet had taken x-rays which did show that each of the puppies had swallowed several open staples. He was preparing them for surgery when my wonderful vet came in and said, "No surgery." I watched him wet several cotton balls and pop them down the puppy's throats. Within 24 hours every staple was accounted for. This is a lesson I learned in the mid 1960's and have had to use several times on my brats. I wet the cotton balls and smear on some liverwurst and they bolt it down and ask for more. The cotton always comes out with the object safely imbedded.

..." I can personally vouch for the cotton ball treatment...This is a lesson I learned in the mid 1960's and have had to use several times on my brats"...

Elections are Fast Approaching!

All regular (voting) members should plan on attending our Annual meeting in May as the election for the Officers and Board members will take place during this meeting. Additional nominations from the floor need to be made at the April meeting by any voting member in attendance as they will not be accepted from the floor at the May meeting. The person being nominated from the floor should also not decline when their name is proposed and if the proposed candidate is not in attendance, the proposer shall present to the Corresponding Secretary a written statement from the proposed candidate signifying willingness to be a candidate.

Remember, no person may be a candidate for more than one position.

Dr. Hendricks Opinion of Pedigree Dogs Exposed

Dr. Joan C. Hendricks, VMD, PhD

..."not once was it mentioned that Cavalier breeders in the UK and the US for years have supported research efforts to eliminate this disease and other inherited problems in the breed"...

This piece is in response to the BBC Pedigree Dogs Exposed and the Today show piece that highlighted the BBC program. Dr. Hendricks is the Dean of Veterinary Medicine at the Gilber S. Khan School of Veterinary Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania.

In 2008 BBC aired "Purebred Dogs Exposed", a program that had a dramatic impact on the purebred dog world in the UK. Recently, the show aired in the US on BBC America and was promoted on the Today Show. There is great concern among breeders and those of us who work closely with breeders that the American public might have a negative view of purebred dogs as a result of the documentary, as was clearly the case in the UK. Because a faculty member of my school was interviewed both for the original documentary and for the Today Show promotion, I received a lot of feedback from breeders. After a discussion with Patty Kanan and Carol Williams, I agreed to write this commentary for the Cavalier King Charles Spaniel Club as I am concerned about the potential impact of this documentary for several reasons. The documentary focused on a few breeds, among them the Cavalier King Charles Spaniel. It highlighted syringohydromelia, a disease that presents with visually dramatic images. Not once was it mentioned that Cavalier breeders in the UK and the US for years have supported research efforts to eliminate this disease and other inherited problems in the breed; studies are ongoing to determine modes of inheritance and develop of genetic tests. That same negative focus was applied to other breeds' problems highlighted in the "expose": epilepsy in boxers, breathing problems in bulldogs, pugs, and Pekingese, structural problems in German shepherds, and dermatitis in Westies. There was no mention of the efforts by breed clubs and the Kennel Club (UK) to support studies of these health problems in order to find ways to eliminate them. Such negative emphasis and repeated mention of the term "inbreeding" implied that purebred dogs are all closely bred. Implied, but not said, was the notion that mixed breed dogs are healthier. Already the public is enthralled by claims made by promoters of mixed breeds – Labradoodles, Goldendoodles, and many other crosses of poodles and toy breeds as well as small hounds – all with the claim of cuteness and no human allergic reactions. However, high-quality scientific studies of mixed breed dogs in comparison to purebred dogs are sorely lacking.

In contrast, there are many studies of specific breeds. Breeders of purebred dogs, individually, through their breed clubs, and through the Canine Health Foundation, have for decades supported research at veterinary and other institutions to ensure knowledge about canine diseases, treatment, and above all, prevention. These efforts not only benefit individual breeds, but frequently other breeds, mixed breed dogs, and in some cases, humans. Unlike human health studies, where the National Institutes of Health has an annual budget in the billions, there is no public funding for such studies, so improvements in canine health rely on dog-lovers to fund them. In theory, organizations that support animal advocacy, like PETA, HSUS, and the ASPCA could also be a source of funding—they certainly have extraordinary levels of funds—but these organizations have other priorities. None supports studies to understand and improve animal health. The biggest organization that supports canine research outside the purebred dog community is the Morris Animal Foundation—and its funding is spread among many species of animals, not just dogs. It is really in the dog breeders' hands to react appropriately to mitigate the negative potential impact if the general public takes "Purebred Dogs Exposed" to heart with the same unquestioning emotional intensity that they did in the UK.

Certainly I would expect that veterinary institutions would wholeheartedly support a rational and organized response—I certainly would. I note that the AKC, through the convening of the Canine Health Advisory Panel, whose members are highly qualified and highly independent, is working to develop clear, measurable improvements in canine health. When the Today show promotional piece aired, we received a number of contacts from breeders and others, many negative and some very positive. At the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine, we value and encourage academic freedom for all our professors to express their opinions, as they have come by them through years of rigorous training and research. As such, Dr. Serpell is entitled to express his opinions.

Our goal at PennVet is to promote animal health and we consider the AKC an important partner in advancing understanding of genetics and disease. In fact, our faculty works hand-in-hand with the AKC and I serve on the AKC's independent canine health advisory board. We recognize, too, that responsible breeders who aim to better the health and lineage of purebred dogs out-number irresponsible breeding practices and we aim to educate and support those who do act responsibly and ethically. I believe this may be a moment for breed clubs to use their place in US society to teach the public about canine health problems, what they are doing to identify, treat and prevent them, when they DO have the microphone such as at the Invitational and Westminster dog shows. The AKC and breed clubs have an honored and important role—fostering healthy breeding practices, supporting canine health research, supporting training to make dogs better citizens—and of course their owners, too. Dr. Hendricks Opinion of Pedigree Dogs Exposed, cont.

Seize this high ground and raise it even higher—with the happy collaboration of individual scientists interested in dogs, veterinary schools, and foundations like the Canine Health Foundation and the Morris Animal Foundation. The CHIC seems to be an excellent start. Here breeders and future owners can obtain information about the health test outcome of breeding animals. Be prepared, adopt real measures to monitor health problems and promote rational measures that prevent them, supported by science. By writing this opinion piece I hope I am showing that academic veterinarians are very likely to be strongly supportive and to help you get your message out.

The Cavalier Chronicle

We are a sanctioned breed specialty club and licensed by the AKC to conduct dog shows and matches. We maintain membership in the American Cavalier King Charles Spaniel Club, the ACKCSC, which is the AKC Parent Club for the breed. The purpose of our Club is to protect and advance the interests of the breed by promoting quality breeding, sportsmanlike competition, and the education of both its members and the general public.

Our members range from experienced show competitors and breeders to first time pet owners, and we are the second Cavalier King Charles Spaniel local specialty breed club to become licensed by the American Kennel Club.

Editor's Note

Another Specialty come and gone! Just think, next year will be the club's 10th Annual Specialty! What a milestone this will be and I hope everyone is looking forward to participating!

The "next big thing" on the horizon? The ACKCS National in Orlando this April 6-9th! It looks like a great time will be had by all and the Banquet and Auction look to be wonderful also! Good luck to all the participants!

If you are of the Christian belief, the season of Lent has begun. Typically, people "give up" something for Lent—and if you are like me, it is something simple like giving up chocolate or coffee or something that really really good but usually really really bad for us! We never seem to really "give up" something that will make us a better person or enhance our being. So, I was thinking.. Wouldn't it be nice if we did not give up something but rather tried to change something? For instance, smile at someone and say hello in a genuine way; really listen to others vs. reading that magazine or newspaper when they are speaking or cutting them off; turning around and doing a special something for your partner, child or friend each day, totally unexpected but appreciated and make it point to remember to say THANK YOU!

You could also continue to "give up" something...how about giving up not coming to our monthly club meetings and come out and enjoy our speakers and camaraderie with our club members. Just as Alice said in her President's message, this is a club that should be run by ALL it's members and we need full participation! If you don't like an aspect of the Club you cannot change it by non-participation. If you do come to meetings or are sitting on the sidelines, why not join a committee?

I hope all of you will consider "giving up" something and come to our meetings and participating in 2010!
